

I've just finished creating my 2015 calendars, based on a series of paintings I did called North America's Iconic Birds. I will be purchasing printed copies of the calendars in the near future. They will be 8 ½ x 11 inches, spiral bound.

Each month page includes reference to all major holidays, the dates of both new and full moons and the starting points of all four seasons.

I used 13 paintings to make these colorful calendars. On the cover is the Wild Turkey. I call the piece Creeping Tom.

For January, I selected the Mallard, in a piece called Comin' In Green.

For February, a Common Loon sits On Golden Lagoon.

In March, I Shall Not Live in Vain depicts the American Robin.

April's piece, Birders' Eye Candy, captures the stunningly plumed Painted Bunting.

May is enhanced by a Herring Gull and blue crab involved in The Battle of the Edges.

Two Mountain Bluebirds cuddle in June's painting, The Whisper.

They symbol of the spirit of America, the Bald Eagle, adorns July's page, in Mine!

A Baltimore Oriole shouts Batter Up! for August.

In Morning Dove, the light of a coming day reveals a Mourning Dove, in September.

A Bedazzled Bully, Ruby-throated Hummingbird male shoos a female away from his flowers in the piece I used with the month of October.

In honor of Edgar Allan Poe's famous poem, I used the Common Raven to represent the month of November Evermore?.

And in the hopes that each of you Have Yourselves a Merry Little Christmas, I've painted a Northern Cardinal on a snowy pine bough to go with the year's final month, December.

The image below represents the front cover of the calendar. All visitors to this website are entitled to a special pre-production price of $15 for these 2015 Calendars. As long as no button for ordering the calendars exists, the calendar can be purchased at the special price through the Donations button on this site, or the PayPal deposit button on FishBaffinBay.com. Once I have the calendars on hand, I will create buttons for ordering them on both sites, and the price will be $19.99.

