

I recently tried a pair of Salt Life Sunglasses, marketed exclusively by Bimini Bay Outfitters. These polarized shades are made of the highest quality components, from the hinges and frames to the lenses themselves. The lenses are made by an Italian company named Zeiss, which has been in business for over 150 years. They are vacuum sealed to prevent delamination and scratching and have an AR-5 back-coating to prevent glare on the back side of the lens. The company prides itself on making a lens which offers the best “color recognition” on the market. So, the shades block out harmful UV rays without causing a loss of clarity of vision.

They are offered in a variety of colors and frame designs. I find them to be equal to my Costa Del Mars in terms of their facilitation of seeing “into” the water, and they seem durable and extremely well-made. Check out more info about these advanced optical tools at <http://www.saltlife.com/optics/>.